

[3] Ash x Dzed EN

D: enters, leaning on his cane, looking around suspiciously Morning, kid. What's this... some kind of overpriced hipster business you got going on here?

A: At your service, sir! Just building and repairing bikes. Anything I can help you with?

D: Well, my old "Aist" finally rusted out, God rest its soul. Served me well since 1980. But I need to keep moving, stretch my joints. My back is shot, knees hurt, I'm getting old. I need a proper bike! Something simple, without all your alien tech. I went to the shop next door, and it's a circus! Gears, cassettes, disc brakes... What, are those discs for hosting a disco party on the run?

A: Haha, you could say that. Actually, I can build you a replacement that's just as good, if not even better.

[PLAYER CHOICES]

[Option A]: Offer old-school style (no gears, pedal-back brake)

[Option B]: Suggest modern simple control

- -- If A ---

D: Let's do it! But no stupid gears! Just hop on and ride. And I want a proper brake, like we had back in the day. Otherwise, you squeeze the lever on the handlebars by mistake, and you fly headfirst into a pile of crap. Can you do that?

A: Certainly. Just a heads-up, though: modern parts aren't made in the USSR anymore, so we can't expect that old-school tank reliability. But on the bright side, there's basically nothing on it that can break...

- -- If B ---

A: We can do one speed, but a hand brake — safer for joints than sudden backward braking.

D: Let's do it! But no stupid gears! Just hop on and ride. And I want a proper brake, like we had back in the day. Otherwise, you squeeze the lever on the handlebars by mistake, and you fly headfirst into a pile of crap. Can you do that?

A: Certainly. Just a heads-up, though: modern parts aren't made in the USSR anymore, so we can't expect that old-school tank reliability. But on the bright side, there's basically nothing on it that can break...

D: Well, if there's nothing to break, let's give it a shot. But my pension doesn't stretch, son, and I bet my old ass you ask a fortune for these shiny pieces of metal.

[PLAYER CHOICES]

[Option A]: Offer senior discount + installments

[Option B]: Justify price by reliability

- -- If A ---

A: Don't worry, we have senior discounts. We'll build you a great budget-friendly ride, and we can even do installment payments if that helps. Come back tomorrow, it'll be ready.

D: Alright, boy. You better deliver. If you cheat an old man, I'll deflate your tires with this cane very, very quickly.

- -- If B ---

A: Price is fair, but reliability is like your old "Aist". No surprises. Come tomorrow — I'll show the finished ride.

D: Alright, boy. You better deliver. If you cheat an old man, I'll deflate your tires with this cane very, very quickly.

next day

D: Morning! You done with that rover, kid?

A: Morning! Yes. Here it is.

D: Looks like the ol' reliable. God bless you mate!

A: Don't forget to leave a review. A very important thing these days.

D: What? Review?

A: Yeah, like, on the web...

[PLAYER CHOICES]

[Option A]: Ask for online review (grandson will help)

[Option B]: Accept newspaper / any format

- -- If A ---

D: THA WEB...You young websters. Good, I'll ask my grandson if I don't forget about it.

- -- If B ---

D: THA WEB...You young websters. Good, I'll ask my grandson if I don't forget about it.

[SCENE END]